

FOR PRESIDENT,
BENJAMIN HARRISON
OF INDIANA.

FOR VICE PRESIDENT,
LEVI P. MORTON
OF NEW YORK.

THE IRRIGATION QUESTION.

The question of irrigation is being actually discussed on the streets of Carson as well as the ranchers in the county.

The APPEAL has several communications on the subject which raise objections to the APPEAL's plan on the ground that the State and not the counties should assume the indebtedness arising from the building of storage reservoirs.

This is not a feasible plan under the existing constitution which expressly prohibits a State debt of over $300,000.

Just how far a county can go in debt for improvements does not seem to be definitely known as people differ greatly on the subject.

One thing however is certain that any bill pointing to the assumption of a debt by the State would be vetoed by the Governor as unconstitutional, if it caused the total debt to exceed $300,000. The margin therefore is very slim.

The APPEAL still believes that the question can only be settled by counties lying in the vicinity of natural water sheds, combining for the general good.

At the same time the next legislature should move in the direction of amending the constitution so that in after years the State can also assist in the water storage scheme.

If Congress were properly memorialized, help might possibly be secured in that direction, and the bill of Senator Stewart providing by hydrographic surveys is the first necessary step.

This is not a matter which one man or a dozen can successfully grapple with, there must be a general concert of action and exchange of ideas until the best possible means can be devised.

The system adopted by Colorado is in our opinion the best yet devised and could be advantageously devised adopted in this State.

A GOOD TEST.

The friends of Congressman Reed of Maine were very anxious on the eve of the election in that State. His conspicuous advocacy of Protection made him a shining mark for the Free Traders, who spared no effort to defeat his reelection. His friends, with equal spirit, rallied to his support. The contest attracted attention throughout New England.

The Boston Journal of September 6th had this note of alarm: "Of all the Northern Representatives, Reed is the one whom Cleveland, Mills and the other Free Traders hate most savagely." It expected to see them putting in a heap of fine work to defeat him. "But," continued the Journal, "he must go back to Congress, and, with loyal work by his supporters, he surely will go." The fact that he was reelected by an increased majority of more than a thousand votes, tells the story. It is another lesson for Free Traders, but only the beginning of the overwhelming calamity they have invited and richly deserve.

A Steady Advance.

The following figures, taken from McCarthy's Statistician, show the onward march of Republicanism in Maine:

Dem. majority, 1878	13,051
" " 1879	872
" " 1880	714
Rep. majority, 1882	8,560
" " 1884	19,745
" " 1886	13,702
